The only safe way to dry was outside, and wind assisted only, rather akin to drying hams. Of course, this approach meant a totally drying time of around 14 weeks, with each figure losing 30% of its weight, which confirmed the amount of moisture absorbed in the time the figures had been stored. Each figure then was dry brushed to very good effect, although unfortunately much of the paint was lost in the process.

Our next task was to develop a colour palette, beginning with test matches on plain card. As the figures had been subject to previous attempts at repainting, some of the original colours had been lost. In keeping then with the colours that we had left, and the general majesty of the set, a semi-lustre finish was selected, and the colours being an amalgum between that which we could identify in the original and those found in the closest images available on the internet - We were also to draw some inspiration from the stained glass scenes from St Mary's direct. The paints used are water based heritage colours, mostly eggshell. We were lucky enough to find most in a sale at B and Q , including some of the metallic bases.

I used to believe that things simply happen, but now I know that they happen for a reason. Being a mathematician, no amount of statistical manipulation can account for the 'coincidences' in our lives, and I always remember the lines from that Hollywood blockbuster when Will Smith finally says that he is 'listening' to the signs sent to him.

Well this project came at just the right time in my life, and formed part of my pilgrimage towards my God. Thanks to the congregation for having faith in me! I hope you enjoy the figures. Art Calder

Galatians 6:9 And let us not grow weary of doing good, for in due season we will reap, if we do not give up.

Thank you Art for all your hard work! This is an abridged version of Art's journey with the Nativity characters - we hope to have copies of the full version available soon.

A Reflection from Ken... February 2013

Dear Friends.

commences on Ash Wednesday (13th Feb It is the glorious triumph of God over the this year), I should like to share a few forces of over sin, evil and despair. thoughts with you.

These are intended to promote personal, NEW HOPE. that is sheared with God, meditation on The It is foundation of authentic forgiveness, Cross of Jesus.

Crosses have been in our News lately, as I write Nadia Eweida a Check In operator with British Airways has just heard the verdict of European Court Judges that her employer was wrong in dismissing her for wearing her lives, our own and others by our reflection cross at work.

I don't think we have heard the end of such Perhaps a model of self reflection may stories though. I must say that I am always help: Look at a Cross, imagine the Lord pleased to see someone willing to wear the hanging there and ask yourself and Him cross, especially if it is to indicate that they What have I done for Christ? have a Christian faith, but even if it is only What am I doing for Christ? an ornament it makes some statement, What ought I do for Christ? however wearing any such a cross it is not a requirement of our faith. But I do Joining a Lent Group might help too! understand that many will find great comfort from their cross and it can help to Pray you each have a blessed Lent act as a introduction as with any Club Ken Badge.

For St Paul, the Christian faith is distinguished from all other religions by the proclamation of the Crucifixion of Christ.

Part of the task of the believer is to As our thoughts turn to Lent, which understand the full meaning of the cross.

It breaks the party of Satan and brings the only means by which we can be restored to fellowship with God.

It represents the full disclosure of God's love and His restorative grace.

Understanding this CROSS requires transformation; it is about changing lives. The Season of Lent is about changing of the Love of Christ.

The road to success is always under construction

September 11th 2011, note in church newsletter — "Restoration of Nativity Figures"

Art Calder's journey with the Nativity Figures...

'How hard can this be?' With a large busy family at home, since my baptism in 2010 I had been looking to be able to give something back to a church that both meant a lot to me and had made a difference to my life.

This was my chance! I put myself forward immediately to Mike, the church warden. When he smiled at me and patted me on the back, I should have guessed at that point that I might have volunteered for something a little bigger than I was expecting. Armed with two empty plastic carrier bags , I followed Mike to the sheds. In the style of Chief Brody in 'Jaws', he turned and said 'You're gonna need a bigger bag!!'

What I hadn't realised is that , instead of the Airfix style 1:32 scale figures , this nativity set had been subjected to an ecclesiastical growth hormone , and I was faced with a series of figurines that would not look out of place in a stage production of Snow White.

Nevertheless, I saw this as a 'test' and set to with gusto. Five car journeys and a slight mechanical back problem later, and all 11 figures (and various 'other' bits and pieces) were safely in the car port.

There was a notable absence of the Christ child , with the exception of one hand and forearm. All figures are plaster of Paris hollow hand cast , with wired limbs. Unfortunately , all have been subjected to moisture damage to one degree or another , resulting in various fractures , and loss of structure. All figures were found to be full of moisture , with the plaster crumbling and unstable.

Mary retained some original paintwork as guide to restoration

Some original paint remained on each figure however, which allowed us to catalogue colours. What was almost miraculous though was the fact that in almost every case, the faces appeared to have escaped most of weather/storage damage that had affected the rest of the bodies. This is not to say that they were entirely unscathed only that the damage to heads was remarkably less than that of torsos.

The drying process was probably the most frustrating of the entire project. We tried to speed the process by drying indoors close to radiators, but the speed at which moisture left the figures resulted in the total decay of both angels. They are a job for 2013!! (continued on back page)

Training Matters

In November three of our Junior Church leaders attended a training day called "Growing Children" at St Wilfred's in Grappenhall with the main speaker being Bob Hartman plus workshops.

Mothers' Christian care for families

We started the new Year with our AGM on January 23rd, followed by entertainment from The Wells Green Singers, which everyone enjoyed. This was followed by our excellent Bring & Share Supper.

On February 27th we have our Lent Service in church at 7.30pm, followed by tea, coffee & biscuits in the Church Hall. March 27th sees a talk by John Maplin from Blitz about fireworks: The Safety Issue. This year we will have only THREE LENT LUNCHES on February 20th, March 6th and March 20th. As these are too good to miss, do put these dates in your diary. The lunches and all our meetings are open to Visitors and new members, so please do come along. Meetings are at 7.30pm every 4th Wednesday in the Church Hall. Everyone welcome.

Marian Carter

By the time this magazine is printed, we should have had our lunch at the Beefeater: a welcome meal during the cold weather! February 20th will be our AGM which will be followed by a Beetle Drive & Refreshments. On Thursday, March 14th will be our annual 'Wave of Prayer' and our time slot is 9.30am (venue to be decided). On Monday, March 25th will be the Lady Day Service at St Chad's, Wybunbury at 11am, where Margaret Smallman will be commissioned as Deanery Leader. This will be followed by a Bring & Share lunch and members are invited to come along and support Margaret. Due to March being a busy month, there will be NO meeting in the Church Hall. Of course, this does not stop members from getting together if they wish! We look forward to Revd Rob Wykes from Crewe Christian Concern giving a talk at our meeting on 17th April. Visitors welcome.

November saw Judy Jones planting an Oak Tree to celebrate the Queen's Diamond Jubilee.

OMEN At the December meeting members had fun playing a "reindeer" drive" game, singing carols, and enjoying a tasty supper. A collection raised £64 and was donated to the Association of Country Women of the World, to help with their work educating and enabling women to improve all aspect of their lives. The Nantwich Town Crier spoke in January of the origins of his "costume", his bell, savings attributed to him and the 1p annual retainer he receives from a Lord of the Manor.
